

Quality of Life-Saving Medicines A New Investment Strategy

A side-event for the PMNCH Partners Forum

Register now to contribute to a new direction in ensuring access to quality life-saving medicines.

Women, infants and children across low income countries lack access to quality life-saving medicines. This impacts on their health, well-being and potential and hinders development progress. Without coordinated, strategic investment progress will continue to falter. We invite you to join our panel of experts for a discussion of a new investment strategy to radically improve access to quality life-saving medicines.

Achieving maternal, newborn and child health (MNCH) targets requires new investors and strategies. Our expert panel will explore the case for investment in and propose a framework for a new initiative focussed on the quality of MNCH medicines, and engage a new team of investors and backers from developing nations to support the initiative.
